$2,000 SPLINT IS PUT IN GIRL'S BROKEN HEART BY JURY

Privilege to Tell Fair Maiden of His Love Will Cost Ed Yale, Aged Wooer, That Much—He Didn't Care if the Whole World Knew About It—She Did

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 15.— Lucille Tompkins, blonde, 21, and, as usual, "pretty and attractive," had a $2,000 splint put on her broken heart today and the fractured organ is doing its natural work.

A jury charged Edward Yale, 76, Stamford hotelkeeper, that much for breach of promise, though Lucille valued her wounded feelings at $50-000.

The trial, sensational in its testimony from both sides, pictured the aged suitor as a hot-blooded blade who had found the fountain of youth and could give Cupid a few lessons about the gentle art of making love.

So importunate was Yale in his love-making, according to the testimony, that he could not wait until he and Lucille were alone in the back parlor to open his heart, but insisted
